

POWYS TALKING NEWSPAPER

A FREE SERVICE

Keeping the Blind and Visually Impaired in touch with news from the local area.

If you are blind, visually impaired, or have disabilities preventing reading, you are eligible to receive our Talking Newspaper.

We welcome new listeners living anywhere in Powys.

The recordings are free-posted weekly on USB memory sticks and if needed we can provide a small easy to use USB player for listening.

If you – or someone you know – could benefit from receiving the Powys Talking Newspaper, please get in touch.

Powys Talking Newspaper is a registered charity

Local news on a stick!

Powys Talking Newspaper editors research the Powys County Times, the Brecon and Radnor Express, and other sources, to collate weekly articles of interest to our listeners. This selection is read out every Friday by two volunteer readers, and recorded in a studio by our technicians. It features the very latest local news and items of interest for the Powys area, enabling our listeners to keep up to date with two hours of local news and events.

This recording is copied onto USB memory sticks and packed into wallets for delivery by post to our listeners, who eagerly await their arrival.

After listening to the recording, the memory sticks are returned freepost through Royal Mail, by simply reversing the address label on the wallet.

This weekly recording is also available online instantly using Alexa, or a web browser.

Our Listeners

Our listeners are of many different ages, but they have one thing in common. They can't easily read the local newspapers, but they still want to know what's going on in their part of Powys.

Your personal data

Volunteering with Powys Talking Newspaper

Powys Talking Newspaper is a charity relying on donations and is run entirely by volunteers.

Volunteers are always needed to be readers or technicians, news editors or committee members.

We would welcome the opportunity to attend a meeting of your organisation/club and explain how the Powys Talking Newspaper (free service) operates and how to become a Listener and receive the weekly edition

To confirm a date or for more information please contact PTN Secretary, Alison at ahwilding1967@gmail.com or telephone 07974 094571
